Weekly Commentary

All matrix indicators are expected to manifest within a +/- 1-day window.

The natural cycles returned strongly this week as Trump's unpredictable tariff changes stabilized.

The 14th was forecast to be an up day, and it was.

Tuesday had a volatility forecast of 4, which suggested that indexes would close over 1% up or down within the +/- 1-day window. A significant drop occurred on Wednesday.

Starting on Wednesday, the Moon moved into Scorpio, suggesting bearish activity during this period, even if only for one day.

NOAA's forecast was very bearish on Wednesday and Thursday, with Wednesday appearing the most bearish. Numerous indexes closed down over 2% on Wednesday.

The MVD Indicator went neutral all week.

The Matrix Summary performed well all week. The exception was Thursday, a pivot date, so it was unsurprising that we saw higher closes in all indexes except the DJIA and QQQ.

Matrix Summary

The Summary is created by applying weighted values to the indicators in the Weekly Matrix.

I though it might be more helpful if I display the daily activity in a candlestick chart format instead of a bar chart.

Binary Options

We took no trades this week in an attempt to keep the powder dry while I feared Trump's tariffs would send the markets careening as they did over the past couple of weeks.

We did try to Sell some options on in expectation of a lower close predicted for Wednesday but the price never fell below $55 which the most I would put at risk. At the very open Tuesday evening, the indexes dropped like a rock and most closed on Wednesday down over -2%
